

The Revelation Room

Purveyors of the finest in home audio

Mission

The finest for those appreciate excellence is a valid description of the brands we represent and also our philosophy. We have been described as maniacs, obsessed, and even insatiable perfectionists, but any description is fine as long as our efforts to achieve the ultimate for our clients are appreciated.

We believe that without music the soul exists but has no life, and we pursue the life-giving power of music reproduction for our elite clientele with a dedication to achieving absolutely the best performance attainable. A true connoisseur will appreciate the finest a fellow human being's dedication to craft is able to offer – witness the finest in automobiles, private jets, exquisite timepieces, exceptional grape vintage, to name but a few. Those in this rarified circle are aware that the pinnacle of excellence is not for everyone, but rather, for the few who continue to appreciate the brilliance of the creator's mind long after the price is forgotten.

In deference to you, our friends and customers, we do not peddle hype or commonplace equipment that is not musically and sonically satisfying. We guarantee that within any price range the sound will be second to none--sounds that will not make you ponder the equipment but that will stir the soul and overwhelm you with emotion – which is what great music and audio can do to one's being.

Many of our customers treat their customized systems like heirlooms they'd be proud to someday bequeath to the next generation. Built to maniacal perfection, our products simply outlast lesser components and technologies. And our products represent smart investments because their value is timeless. And we look after you way, way after your system has been set-up in your home.

We are also purveyors of the ultimate home theater systems, with cinematic experience that is reminiscent of the best high tech virtual rides you will find in the best theme parks.

All our clients are treated with confidentiality and respect. Although you are welcome to walk through our doors during any sane hour (you have to really know us then!), we encourage appointments so that you will be able to have a proper audition. Private auditions are also extended to the client's guests if he so wishes. Our passion for things audio separates us from others, and we consider the setting up of your audio system an art form. Not only do we partner with professional acousticians that will bring along measuring equipment to determine your room's acoustics, but also our years of passionate training have enabled us to develop acute hearing. Together with you, that is our final arbiter of the sound.

Thanks for visiting and enjoy life.

What We Look for in Our Products

At The Revelation Room, our focus is on musical reproduction in your home - not just in our showroom.

The sad truth is that many audiophiles, dealers, and manufacturers have lost the passion and vision for high-end audio and its true goal. The raison d'être for The Revelation Room is, in our own small way, to re-ignite the passion and bring back the excitement and fun. We apologize if you do not hear us recommending an upgrade or expanding your system unnecessarily. Until a component makes a real difference and offers true value it shall not be represented or recommended by The Revelation Room. We are very wary of most reviews and reviewers and see them mostly as advertising copy, and therefore we usually exercise our own discretion when reading them.

For years we have been pursuing this interest in audio because we are music lovers. But to say that the equipment that makes the music does not ignite a fire within us would be untrue. We love the components in addition to the musical emotion they convey to us. After spending much effort, precious time (which should be spent listening to music), and resources we have come to realize that there is room for honest, dedicated, and knowledgeable purveyors to serve those of us who share an intensity for the high end. As a result The Revelation Room represents manufacturers who offer real breakthrough products whose value grows long after the price is forgotten. The components we value most are the ones that make us feel the emotions and moods – the experience, if you will - of the performing artists on the exact same day they made the recording. That is what great audio will do for us and, we are confident, for you too.

The high-end audio universe has revolved around many a myth, and in recent years few, if any, brands have actually made strides in engineering excellence. In the early days of the high end, when a new product was launched there was real excitement and anticipation because everyone knew that we were about to witness something special. But in today's scenario almost everyone has suddenly become the "best" in audio design, espousing new technology and materials in a technical "arms race." This is, in our opinion, the wrong path for the industry. A true trailblazer must first have a vision to handcraft the best he knows how. He/she would labour over it and lavish it with a true spirit of dedication. He would be a radical thinker and designer who will challenge and re-think common theory and wisdom. He would have his remarkable products evolve in the pursuit of the elusive "absolute sound," instead of being limited by considerations typical of accountants in huge corporations. These are the cutting edge refinements you will discover in our thoroughbred stable because we share a common philosophy with the true artisan designer.

If you have the time, please visit the websites of our partners for the very select group whom The Revelation Room represent in the Asia Pacific area.

We certainly hope that you, the music lover, visiting our website will share our passion. We look forward to getting to know you and your listening biases, and if we are able to help you regain your passion and enjoy the music more, then The Revelation Room will have succeeded.

Thank you and enjoy life.
